If You Can't Live or Die, Make Coffee

It has been said in these rooms that if we threw our problems into one pile and walked around it for a while, we'd each reach in and take back our own problems. As an active alcoholic, I wish I had a nickel for every time I found myself in that state of utter despair. God help me! What can I do? I've alienated everyone I know who means anything to me; I don't know how to behave among normal people; and I can't stop drinking! I wish I could change everything, change everyone, so things could be better. I thought I knew the answers, but for some inexplicable reason nothing seemed to work out. Everything in my life seemed to be getting progressively worse when all I wanted was to make it better. I saw that I couldn't live this way, but there seemed no other way that I could live. Death appeared to be an alternative. If I killed myself I'd have the last say after all, and my family would benefit from the insurance. It seemed my last opportunity to write a happy ending. But I wasn't really all that macho. I was scared and I knew I was about to lose everything I'd manipulated my way into. It was as if my whole life had been meaningless. What should I do? Make coffee! That's what some insensitive guy suggested at a meeting. "Why dwell on what you can't do? It just gets you more frustrated. Why not concentrate on what you can do and do it? You want to be of some genuine value in this world? Then come down off Mount Olympus and join us. We don't need a corporate vice president—and your other credentials don't count here. Our only concern is to help ourselves by helping each other find what we were all so desperately in search of: freedom from booze and a contended, useful life. We don't need a genius. We need a coffee maker. You want to feel good about yourself again? Make coffee!" They had no way of knowing what they were letting themselves in for. I'd never made a cup of coffee in my whole life, and here I was being asked to brew coffee for a crowd of people. The prospect scared me half to death, though I must admit it took my mind off my other problems. Here was a real problem: How do I tell the group members about my fear? Well I mustered all the courage I could and told them that I wasn't street-wise enough to make coffee. So they put two guys on it with me who knew what they were doing. Within a few weeks not only did I make a good pot of coffee (eighty cups, mind you), but I found that with the coffee maker's job came fringe benefits.

From the Central Office SERVICE DESK
A total of 514 phone calls were made to the Central Office in NOVEMBER
204 for info on AA,
2 for info on Al-Anon,
6 messages for other inquiries,
6 requesting a Twelfth Step call, 302 after Office Hours calls. There were 205 walk-ins visits as well.

They began to trust me with the key to the meeting room and it became my responsibility to set up the chairs and put out the signs for the meetings. Thank God I didn't feel that any of this was beneath me, because as I did these things and didn't question the need for them or the reason for them ( I was told it would help me stay sober), I experienced a miracle. For while I was doing these things I felt like I was a real, living,

THE VERY BEST WE CAN BE

I have a deep, abiding faith that if I take care of the AA program, the program will take care of me—and you—and those who have yet to come. And for that to happen, AA must survive and grow. Some changes will have to be made to adjust to the changing world and to deal with the problems that arise. But AA can survive and grow only if our living and changing is done within the limits allowed by our Steps and Traditions. To do this I think we can use our Serenity Prayer as our guide. First let's ask for serenity to accept the things we cannot change. These are the Traditions. My first sponsor told me the Steps were to save me from my disease and the Traditions were to save AA from me. These Traditions were not plucked from the air but were forged on the anvil of experience. Many groups (and therefore many individual lives) had to be lost while the Traditions were being developed. Thank God the Traditions are now written in stone, so to speak. To change them requires the written approval of three quarters of the AA groups in the world. That sounds pretty unchangeable to me. So, we must accept the Traditions as something we cannot change. Next, let us ask for courage to change the things we can. In 1965, Bill asked, "What sort of heritage are we leaving for the use of all those future generations that will people our Society? Is this heritage as good as we can make it? What can we still do that may multiply our assets and decrease our liabilities?" These questions are still valid today. I do not like the phrase, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." Just because we always do something a certain way doesn't mean it is the best way. Bill's philosophy was that "the good is often the enemy of the best." If we are able to accept just not being broke as our goal, we will cease to make any progress at all. Our greatest danger is that we may become too rigid, too formalized, that we cease to pulse and grow, that we become a monument—beautiful, maybe, be cold and dead. So we should not fear to go forward slowly, we should fear only to stand still. For example, I have attended meetings where the opening and closing are more ritualistic than sharing or informative. The Preamble is recited in unison sounding much like a bunch of second graders reciting the multiplication tables, "How it Works" is read in a monotone while most of those present are either conferring in low tones or looking vacantly around the room giving no heed to the life-saving words being spoken. If these things are done only as a habit, they would just as well be dispensed with to leave time for more honest sharing. I believe these should be read—read with enthusiasm and feeling, with the thought given to just what the words mean. They should be listened to with undivided attention, because what is heard might just be the thing required for another day's sobriety. Bill said, "Individually and collectively, structurally and spiritually, we shall ever need to build for the future. We are still laying down the foundation on which all coming generations of AA's will important part of this wonderful Fellowship. I belonged! It was my introduction into the now, and for the first time in years I knew serenity. I found that pushing a broom at the end of each meeting also helped me to stay sober—and—not because of some high-minded purpose like helping the group. No, it was more because I suspected that most, if not all, of the really sober ones had done the same thing and knew the secret of what pushing a broom can do for a big-time operator like myself. I was grateful enough to know that they loved me enough to know and give me exactly what I needed. All I thought about as I was making the coffee was making the coffee and how people could enjoy it. At my sponsor's suggestion, I stood near the coffeepot and welcomed everyone who came by. I must have experienced a million smiles in a very short time. And when I pushed the broom all I concentrated on was the dust rising from it as I moved it across the floor. My troubles were gone for the time that I was doing these things. And so it can be for you. If you can't live and you can't die, make coffee.

have to stand, perhaps for centuries.” So, finally, we need to ask for wisdom to know the difference. In other words, are there any pitfalls in change? Of course there are. One thing that concerns me is that I see shrines springing up in Akron, in Vermont, and at Bill's home, Stepping Stones in Bedford Hills. Yes, these should be preserved for their historic value, but I fear they are becoming holy places where people visit to worship Saint Bill and Saint Bob. This is the very thing our co-founders wished to avoid. Dr. Bob emphasized that he did not want a monument. Bill passed up many honors. We must read and reread, study and restudy our history. The books AA Comes of Age, Dr. Bob and the Good Oldtimers, and Pass it On contain the wisdom we need. I think we should maintain contact with the very fallible persons our co-founders were. Bill also said, “Should any be tempted by the dream that AA is becoming great, powerful, or may be destined to save the world, they could well reread the foreward of AA's Tradition where these words are to be seen ‘...If, as a movement, we remain a spiritual entity concerned only with carrying the message to fellow suffers...then only can we most effectively complete our mission...’ “For just so long as we shall humbly meditate in this spirit upon our great yesterdays, just so long will God grant us our vision of tomorrow.” In AA Comes of Age, Bill wrote, “In the years ahead, we shall, of course, make mistakes. Experience has taught us that we need have no fear of doing this, providing that we always remain willing to confess our faults and to correct them promptly. Our growth as individuals has depended upon this healthy process of trail and error. So will our growth as a Fellowship. Let us always remember that any society of men and women that cannot freely correct its own faults must surely fall into decay if not into collapse. Such is the universal penalty for the failure to go on growing. Just as each AA must continue to take his moral inventory and act upon it, so must our whole Society do if we are to survive and if we are to serve usefully and well.

To accomplish this task, we must have honesty, open-mindedness, and willingness. We also need time—time to understand the problems facing us and time to implement the very best solutions. Someone once said that the only thing constant in the universe is change. Nothing, not even AA, can stay static. We must change. We must take the time required to be sure the changes are the right ones, the best ones, not just good enough, not just, “It ain't broke.” Time! Remember when your sponsor said, “it takes time”? Didn't you just hate it? But experience has taught me: 1. The feeling that AA cannot grow to meet any future problem is formed in fear, not faith. The Big Book tells us that God will provide if we stay close to him and do his work well. 2. As a Fellowship, we have no real problems as long as we abide by our Traditions. 3. Today's problems in AA won't be tomorrow's problems. 4. The passage of time and the acceptance of changes in the world beyond our control will help to alter our perceptions and our ability to work out possible solutions. So, for a conclusion, I am going to reach into the past and share some of Bill's wisdom. He said, “We have to grow or else deteriorate. For us, the “status quo” can only be for today, never for tomorrow. Change we must; we cannot stand still.” He asked, “Just how, then, can AA go on changing for the better? Does this mean we are to tinker with our basic principles? Should we try to amend our Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions? Here the answer would seem to be ‘no.’ Those twenty-four principles have first liberated us, have then held us in unity, and have enabled us to function and to grow as AA members and as a whole.... “So then, if our basics are firmly fixed as all this, what is there left to change or improve? The answer will immediately occur to us. While we need not alter our truths, we can surely improve their application to ourselves, to AA as a whole, and to our relation with the world around us. We can constantly step up ‘the practice of these principles in all our affairs.’” What I will be tomorrow, I am becoming today. What Alcoholics Anonymous will be tomorrow, it is becoming today. Let us, you and I, make sure it is becoming the very best it can be.
