A PRAYER FOR JIM

Working Together Through the Twelve Steps

As a young boy, I received a wonderful religious training that gave me great comfort and a sense of purpose. At the same time, I craved recognition from others. I especially liked the Lenten season. I was allowed to go to services each morning and to come into classes late, where I would be allowed to eat breakfast while the other kids were already working. I'm not sure which made me feel better, my devotion or the attention I got because of it. When I was 18, I discovered drinking and many more ways to get attention. I would dress for church, but instead I drove to a bar members of the group. He cleaned up his amends by making where I'd drink long enough to cover the length of the service and then return home as if I had gone to church. It was the '60's, and ideas about God and religion were changing along with almost everything else. It was fashionable not to belong to any religion. Rather, we would live by a code of ethics. Everything would be OK if we just treated everyone right. This appealed to me because I had begun to see that doing God's will, as I had been taught, would not be nearly as much fun as I wanted. I made the conscious decision to leave religion behind and live by this new code. I would take care of my business and God would take care of his. Fortunately, my religion gave me the perfect out. When I got really old, I thought, about a week before I died, I would make peace with God and still get my eternal reward. Time passed, the drinking progressed and my ethical code didn't hold up well. The trouble was that I held everybody to my high standards, but I was able to cut myself a break. There was always a good reason why I couldn't live up to those standards, and I would excuse myself. Toward the end of my drinking, I had lots of friends and acquaintances. However, I felt I had to be on guard against them hurting me in some way. I couldn't let anyone know anything personal about me for fear they'd somehow use it against me. I longed for someone with whom it could be "you and me against the world," but I couldn't even bring myself to trust either of the two women I had married. When I finally shut them out of my life, they left me wondering why this always had to happen to me. I tried one AA meeting, but couldn't admit powerlessness. I went on a 12-year quest to try to drink enough to feel good but not so much that I would get into trouble. After the second wife left, I went on a tear and found myself passed out in my car in a resort town 60 miles from my home. I realized the only reason I had stopped drinking that night was because the bar had called last call. If I had had the time, money and strength, I would've still been drinking. This scared me into going to another AA meeting. This time, I felt immediately at ease and I actually loved the Fellowship. I went to a meeting every night and was amazed at the openness of the AAs who shared. Even through I didn't fully understand powerlessness and wasn't completely sold on it, I did begin to see that I had to get the drinking under control if I were going to solve all the other problems in my life. After about two weeks. I was at the terrible spot many of us find ourselves: I was feeling better and I wasn't feeling the heat quite so much. Perhaps I was making too much of this Continued page 3

When Bob joined our Tuesday night Step group, he was sober nine years. He had gone to meetings regularly, but when he came to our group he was consumed by anger, depression, and fear. He had never worked the Twelve Steps, and so he'd never found the freedom the program promises. Within just one month of his first meeting with us, Bob had done a good job of working the first eight Steps and was making progress on his amends. In the next several years, he swapped a number of Fifth Steps with the other them directly to those he had harmed. He learned about taking Step Three aloud with another AA member and did that numerous times. He did the same with Step Seven. He continued to write thorough Fourth Steps and follow them with the cleansing of Step Five. Bob explained, "By example and encouragement, members of the group helped me find the benefits of the program that had eluded me. The promises began to come true. Anger, depression, and fear gradually dissolved and disappeared. Freed from the past, I began to live easily in the present." In our view, a group is strong to the degree that its members are working the Steps. This releases the vitality needed for change, and all the members share its power. A member joining the group is picked up and carried by this vitality. It starts him doing the things that make him well. Martha came into our group two years ago, sober just a few weeks. Soon after that, several women helped her with her Fourth Step. When she was ready for her Fifth Step, Martha took it with a woman in the group, who took hers at the same time. They took Step Three and Step Seven aloud. Then this older member helped Martha write out her list of persons she had harmed. Martha began to make amends. She has continued to work all the Steps. She staved sober in the past two years despite difficult personal problems. The example of the group encouraged her to keep following the program's directions. This, in turn, enabled her to handle each day's trails. "As I worked the Steps, I found my own answers and gained the strength to put them to work in my life." Martha said. We meet in members' homes and each Tuesday night take one of the Twelve Steps. When we get up to Twelve, we start over again. The comments are alive because each person is working every one of the Steps and is speaking from fresh experience. It's a working group, not a discussion group. The spiritual life demands honesty and responsibility. It recalls the pungent observation of St. Theresa: "God is among the pots and pans." Speaking from where we are generates an honesty that helps each of us become a bit more sane. Persuasive in it's power, the strength of the group helps us move along in the program. It carries a transforming message for all, whether new or old in the Fellowship. Working the Steps slashes through the empty rhetoric of conversation about God and provides an experience of God. The gap between the two is measured in light years. To go from knowledge to experience is to move from one side of the earth to the other. Each Tuesday night, the meeting Go to page 3

deal but I really did like the people and the feeling I got around them. I came to a turning point. Should I continue going to so many meetings or should I cut back? Should I stay or should I go? I went to a meeting early one day with these thoughts swirling around in my head. I ran into the pastor of that church and we chatted. He was not one of us but had worked with many of us during his priest-hood. He suggested that I pray about it at the chapel on grounds. I went and soon realized that it had been so long, I didn't remember any prayers. But I was stubborn and decided to stay until something happened. I looked through the little books and pamphlets in the chapel and came across the prayer of St. Francis in one of them. I had not seen it in any AA literature but truly intrigued about the prayer. The sentiments expressed in it clashed with the way I was living: the prayer talked about giving love and not worrying about getting it back. I was only willing to give love if I received it first. I craved understanding while never giving it to others. Somehow I could sense that many of my AA friends were living closer to St. Francis's ideal and their lives appeared to be working. And besides, my life wasn't working and here was another way. I decided to stay and try AA. I learned that improving the quality of my relationships was much more important than any money or influence I might get. I found that spirituality was not just in the number or fervor of my prayers. It was also in the manner in which I treated God's children: showing them love and service may be even more important demonstration. Over the years I've stayed sober, but every time I've put money or influence first, my life has suffered and my Higher Power has guided me back on the path. I'm even more convinced 24 years later that the path to spirituality lies in my willingness to love rather than be loved.	ourselves in the same predicament as a town with an elaborate water system—gleaming pipes, tanks, pumping stations, filtration plants—but no source of water. Many other spiritual movements have drifted down that dismal path where structure supplants spirit. The power in our group is tangible, but not coercive. Each of us works the Steps because friends are witnessing to what they find through the Steps. A vehicle for God's love, our group liberates the wonderful spiritual alchemy that takes the worthless past and transmutes it into a useful present. It turns garbage into gold. Initially, the bond in AA is one of mutual suffering. Then it becomes mutual aid, and finally a vision of a future we couldn't reach anywhere else. In the spirit of Tradition Eleven, we have attracted members from all over the Chicago area. Several other Step groups have formed from ours in the past few years. One of our members, Bill, was sober eleven years when he joined us six years ago. In those eleven years, he had gone to countless meetings, made innumerable calls on new members, sponsored a number of alcoholics. He'd made one slight omission, however. He had never worked the Steps. Depressed, afraid, angry, he frantically sought relief from his symptoms caused by sobriety without Steps. "I went to a psychiatrist who explored my subconscious and checkbook with equal enthusiasm," declared Bill. "I tried other therapies. Nothing helped." Then he visited a treatment facility near Chicago and talked to the chief psychologist, who supposedly knew something about alcoholics and AA. The psychologist suggested shock treatment. Bill now calls him "Dr. Electrode." Fortunately, before Dr. Electrode could connect him up to the current, Bill
Jim H., Largo, Florida Reprint Permission/ AA Grapevine/ April 2016 Working Together Through the Twelve Stepscontinued from page One begins with a quiet time. Someone reads "How it Works." The host or hostess speaks on the Step for that evening, each member comments, and the meeting closes with the Lord's Prayer. There's an unofficial collection, and occasionally we have a brief discussion of what to do with the money. Our members live in about eight different suburbs west of Chicago. Recently, we donated Big Books to the libraries in each of these suburbs. Later, we may give them copies of the "Twelve and Twelve," too. We support local and world AA services, but we take care of these obligations with a minimum of time and no confusion. I've spend a good bit of time in AA activities, committees, and so on, and some of those meetings should have been held in the violent ward of the local state hospital. Members of our Step group are concerned with the message—experiencing the message and carrying it. We spend no time in business-bickering. Our Fellowship has Three Legacies: Recovery, Unity, and Service. Recovery starts with working the Steps. As long as I'm a member of AA, my recovery will continue through the Steps. That's where the message comes from. Without a solid base of experience in working the Steps, we'll ultimately have no need for either Unity or Service. There'll be nothing to unify and no understanding of how to serve. We could find Next column	ran into a member of our group. The member explained that Bill's symptoms were the inevitable result of stopping drinking without working the program. Ste by Step, he helped Bill follow the program's directions, right through Step Eight, which he helped Bill write after they had shared a Fifth Step. Bill joined our group, continued to work the Steps, and quickly lost his depression and other miseries. In general, the experience of the AA members who have joined us testifies that recovery is a process, not an event . Some have been sober many years before they began to honestly use the program as it's designed. Others had been around AA for years, unable to find freedom from the insane obsession that kept bringing the first drink to their lips. From these varying personal stories, they've all drawn the same conclusion, however: The program works just as the Big Book says it will; the payoff comes from persistent effort with all the Steps. Our group stimulates that kind of action in each of us. No one can throw us out of AA, but we can throw ourselves out by living in a way that forfeits our membership. On occasion, I've nearly done that. Dishonest, irresponsible, self-centered, I've pushed myself to the outskirts of our Fellowship. My friends in the Tuesday night Step group have seen what's happening, caught me, and said, "Hey, come back. Stick with us or you don't have a chance." They've been right, of course, and they've saved my life. P.M., Riverside, III. Reprint Permission/AA Grapevine/April 1977

41Q - If an alcoholic comes to an A.A. meeting under the influence of alcohol, how do you treat him or handle him during the meeting?

41A - Groups will usually run amuck on that sort of question. At first we are likely to say that we are going to be supermen and save every drunk in town. The fact is that a great many of them just don't want to stop. They come, but they interfere very greatly with the meeting. Then, being still rather intolerant, the group will swing way over in the other direction and say, "No drunks around these meetings." We get forcible and put them out of the meeting, saying, "You're welcome here if your sober." But the general rule in most places is that if a person comes for the first or second time and can sit quietly in the meeting, without creating an uproar, nobody bothers him. On the other hand, if he's a chronic "slipper" and interferes with the meetings, we lead him out gently, or maybe not so gently, on the theory that one man cannot be permitted to hold up the recovery of others. The theory is "the greatest good for the greatest number."
